Visual perception is the ability to interpret the surrounding environment using light in the visible spectrum reflected by the objects in the environment. This is different from visual acuity, which refers to how clearly a person sees (for example "20/20 vision"). A person can have problems with visual perceptual processing even if he/she has 20/20 vision.

There are numerous methods to tackle this dark matter, yet also inherent limitations. As outlined above, analytical limitations of the broad untargeted methods are such that insufficient information will be available to identify a large proportion of the unknowns beyond a tentative annotation based on exact mass only (see e.g. Ref. [ ] and Fig. 2).

Inventions don't generally happen by accident or in a random order: science and technology progress in a very logical way, with each new discovery leading on from the last. You can see that in our mini chronology of invention, below. It's not meant to be a complete history of everything; it's simply another way to explore the 450 or so detailed articles on our website.
