Cosmic rays are a form of high-energy radiation, mainly originating outside the Solar System and even from distant galaxies. Upon impact with the Earth's atmosphere, cosmic rays can produce showers of secondary particles that sometimes reach the surface. Composed primarily of high-energy protons and atomic nuclei, they are originated either from the sun or from outside of our solar system.

Gravitational waves are disturbances in the curvature (fabric) of spacetime, generated by accelerated masses, that propagate as waves outward from their source at the speed of light. They were proposed by Henri Poincaré in 1905 and subsequently predicted in 1916 by Albert Einstein on the basis of his general theory of relativity. Gravitational waves transport energy as gravitational

In most high count rate situation both deadtime as well as pile-up problems are possible. As Evans pointed out that every detection instrument used for counting exhibits a characteristic time constant resembling the recovery time. He noted that after recording one pulse, the counter is unresponsive for successive pulses until a time interval equal to or greater than its deadtime, τ , has elapsed.
