Science in a broad sense existed before the modern era and in many historical civilizations. Modern science is distinct in its approach and successful in its results, so it now defines what science is in the strictest sense of the term. Science in its original sense was a word for a type of knowledge, rather than a specialized word for the pursuit of such knowledge. In particular, it was the ...

or the first time in history humans are predominantly urban. Cities occupy less than 2 percent of the Earth's land surface, but house almost half of the human population and use 75 percent of the resources we take from the Earth [1]. The statistics of urban growth in the late 20th century surpass any other demographic indicators.
