Fortunately, review games don't have to be a waste of time. By choosing games that focus on the questions themselves while spending minimal time on the "game" part, you can add some excitement into your test prep without sacrificing the actual review. Review Games that Use Time Effectively: Just give points: Divide the class into two (or ...

Reviewing material can be so boring. Not only is it boring for you to teach, but think about how your students feel! When reviewing for a unit or state exam, try to incorporate activities and classroom games that engage students, not bore them. The trick is to make it so much fun that the students don't even realize they are reviewing material.

I have tried these for unit review games in science and social studies with success. One game is the familiar "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire." In this game, I got my kids together by rows to be on teams. I would read a question to the first student in the first row. He/she has to answer the question independently, as they do on the show.
